Jim Braden Shifted to the Second Team to Test Defence of the 'Varsity

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 14 .--Yale's football practice to-day was devoted entirely to the development of special plays. One consecutive scrimmage was attempted, but the main object of the drill was to explain the 'varsity's defensive possibilities, that team being lined up for twenty minutes against the second 'varsity, and twenty more against the so-called "col-

The marking of players is especially needed at Columbia because of the distance of the stands from the playing field. At present it is almost impossible to distinguish the man carrying the field.

Tigers Worked Hard in Mud To Cure Faults

Fumbling Hereafter To Be Considered an Offence in Game or Scrimmage

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 14.—Coach Roper postponed the practice game scheduled between the first and second elevens to-day because of the pouring rain that made the gridiron at University Field a morass of mud. In place of the usual scrimmage he gave the freshmen the ball on the 'varsity's 10-yard line and let the yearlings slam line plays toward the goal for twenty minutes.

The freshmen went through for three touchdowns in that time. This practice afforded a good opportunity for the line to correct the faults of high charging and off-side play that have been worrying the coaches since the opening of the season and Roper was not displeased with the afternoon's result.

The backs spent over an hour in booting wet balls in the rain and nearly the same time in trying to improve their ability to hang on to punts and forward passes. Fumbling is hereafter to be considered a serious offence at Tigertown, either in games or serimmages.

The steady downpour of yesterday afternoon did not deter the gridition warriors of New York University from going on with their regular daily work-out. Bib Wiener, tackle; Pete Soko-lower, tackle; Pete Soko-lower, ends, all of former Violet elevens, have been added to the coaching staff.

The appearance of these old stars in togs and Archie Brinn at his position at centre point to a greatly improved line by the time the Violet encounters. Squad B will play the second the strong Wesleyan eleven on Saturday. Brinn will be remembered as the Captain Howard Cann completed the afternoon's workout by booting over several kicks from placement. Blackboard drills were then held in the gymnasium.

Cornell Faces Hard Battles In Near Future

Ithacans Must Meet Colgate Eleven Next Saturday and Dartmouth a Week Later

ITHACA, N. V. Oct. 14.—Although the Cornell football team has played but two games so far, it is confronted at this early date by two of the most difficult games on the schedule, that with Colgate to be played in Ithaca next Saturday and the contest with Dartmouth scheduled for the Polo Grounds, New York City, on October 25. So coaches and players are keyed up to an unusually high pitch for this period of the year, with all of their energies devoted toward perfecting individual and team play to a point where they can enter these games as nearly as possible on even terms with their rivals.

conservative game in the first two engagements on the schedule, and have scored only 12 points, gratifying progress has been made in developing the inexperienced material, and the absence inexperienced material, and the absence of an impressive scoring total is causing no particular ceneern. Cornell has not been scored on nor has its goal line been in danger. The defensive play of the forward line and the ends showed marked improvement in the Williams game over that of the opening contest with Oberlin.

There is a feeling among the backers of the Ithacans that the offensive power or punch that has been missing in their play so far is really in the team, and they are confident that some of that power will soon find expression.

With a faster charging forward line, a better knit interference and more speed in getting oif the plays the team should uncover an offence which should be much more effective than any it has displayed up to this time. The Williams game was of great help to Cornell because in the Purple the Ithacans ran up against an aggressive and sturdy opponent much more formidable than is usually the case in an early season game. The lessons of the Williams game furnished the coaches plenty of naterial to work

WEST POINT, Oct. 14.—Although the Army had a practive to-day it was light, consisting chiefly of signal work. The men came out of the hard Syracuse battle in fair condition aside from some bruises. Blaik was not in the drill to-day, nor was Greene or MeQuarrie. This trio is resting, but will resume heavy work to-morrow.

The coaches were not very well satisfied with the team's showing against Syracuse, and the whole squad is due for a strenuous week. To-day McDavid, Post and Tueder were moved over from the Cullum Hall squad to the regulars, and all three of these players worked with the big team, alternating in MeQuerrie's place.

Post looks the most promising and may get a regular herth behind the line if he keeps up his good work. Travis was back in togs to-day for the first time in four weeks. He played for a brief spell at tackle, as did Daniel, who is expected to land a regular job in the front line.

White and Tormey, the latter a tackle, were also in to-day's scrimmage, the variety, generally speaking, nut up an effective defence and by the time of the tackle, were also in to-day's scrimmage. Both have been in the injured list for a fortnight. White is an end and came here from the University of Maine, where he played in 1916.
